

Walking Home Alone

My friend let's tell me about you about the things you do
Some of the good things in your life and how you make it through

You came across our country I know you did it on your own
You walked down the alley and you stepped into my

And the years went by like water that runs the river wild
And although the river did run dry it allways shined a light - even at night

And then we walked together we roamed from town to town
Had so much fun and so much joy felt like a bird that's flown

And the years went by like water that runs the river wild
And although the river did run dry it allways shined a light - even at night

And then our ways devided each of us did it on his own
I made my life and in the end I was walking home alone

And the years went by like water that runs the river wild
And although the river did run dry it allways shined a light - even at night
There shined a light - deep at night - deep at night
